

FIRST SEMESTER SHOWS CHANGES AT UNIVERSITY

Three Profs Added To Faculty; Also New President

ATHLETIC GAIN

The past semester was marked by several definite changes at Omaha University, a review of the events of the past term shows.

Administration changes head the list, both chronologically and by importance. The beginning of the fall semester, 1935, marked the taking over of the Presidency of the University by Rowland Haynes, former state relief administrator for the federal government. Mr. Haynes succeeded the late Dr. William E. Sealock.

Other changes in faculty personnel included the appointment of Prof. Lloyd M. Bradfield, psychology instructor, as Dean of Men, and the granting of leaves of absence to Dr. V. Royce West, Prof. Shepherd L. Witman and Prof. Irwin A. Hammer. New professors added to the faculty were Dr. A. Dayle Wallace, English; Prof. Harry Severson, economics; and Prof. Dayton E. Heckman, political science.

Athletic Progress

The next big item of the semester was Omaha University's rapid rise in the athletic world. The Cardinal athletes easily repeated their 1934 championship in the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Association, and made a showing in the stronger North Central league which proved they were ready to step into higher class of competition than the N. I. A. A.

This change was made officially

Newspaper Men To Teach Course

A course in newspaper editing with Russell Peters of the Omaha Bee-News and Robert Lasch, a member of the editorial staff of the Omaha World-Herald, as instructors, is being planned for the second semester, Dean Edgar A. Holt stated Friday. A definite announcement that the course will be offered cannot be made until the schedules of Mr. Peters and Mr. Lasch are arranged.

In the University catalogue the course is scheduled as Newspaper Editing 320 with Dr. V. Royce West as instructor. In the absence of Dr. West, Professor A. Dayle Wallace has been directing the journalism work. Mr. Wallace will be unable to continue this work next semester, according to Dr. Holt, because of an increase in his teaching schedule.

The course will include training in copy reading, head-line writing and newspaper make-up. A study will also be made of the functions of the city desk.

HARRIS SPONSORS THETA

Dr. Lyman Harris, professor of history, has replaced Mr. Bradfield, dean of men, as active sponsor of Theta Phi Delta fraternity. Dean Bradfield felt that as dean of men he would be unable to devote enough time to the fraternity activities.

Haynes Predicts Advances

Message to Students Sees Campus Progress

The regents and the administration are definitely at work on considerable number of impossible plans for the enlargement and advancement of the University, according to a letter written to the students of the University by President Rowland Haynes at the request of The Gateway.

Following is the President's letter:

To the Students:

From the bottom of my heart I wish every student and every person connected with the University the very best possible year for 1936.

Nobody can give you an education. That is one thing that every person has to get for himself. All the University can do is to give you opportunities for you to get an education. It is my earnest hope that the University of Omaha, like every growing institution, may give better and better opportunities, by which students can get sound and worth while education.

As for forecast, I believe that the University will make, in the year 1936, definite progress in educational methods and toward a more adequate campus and equipment.

It is impossible to set a definite date when various steps will be taken. With regard to the new campus situation, for instance, literally days of time in the last four months have been spent by the administrative officers and the Regents, studying the basic questions. We have eliminated a considerable number of impossible sites which have been proposed. We have made studies of the relative accessibility of other sites, the amount of space that is needed for adequate handling of athletics and physical education, costs of different sites, and sound methods of financing without crippling the institution by borrowing.

Yet we cannot definitely set a date for any particular step. I can, however, assure the student body that hard work is being done and steady progress being made.

The same is true of educational methods. We are considering the work-study plan, a method whereby more students can afford to get a better and more practical education at the University. Months of work with the employers of the city are still necessary before we can determine whether the plan can be put into operation.

The last four and one-half months have shown me that we have a strong, active, worth while student body, that we have an intelligent and co-operative faculty, that we have a friendly group of alumni, that we have a hard-working and practical-minded Board of Regents, and a sound financial structure. With these assets the future of the University of Omaha is secure of all of these groups do their part, as I believe they will.

OMAHA TO PLAY SO. DAKOTA UNI THURSDAY EVE

Cards Will Try To Get Out Of Cellar

STARTS AT 8

Omaha University will tackle the South Dakota Coyotes in the Central High School gym this Thursday evening in their fourth contest in the North Central Conference. The Coyotes, according to their standing in the league, are not in the same class with the North Dakota Sioux, who handed Omaha their third straight defeat, and a much better game is expected.

With a defeat still fresh in their minds, Coach Johnny Baker and his Cardinals began working on the offense yesterday to obtain a more powerful punch. Rugged passing featured the game with North Dakota U. last Saturday evening, and long, strenuous practices will occupy the remainder of the week. The Omaha lads will also receive drill on charity shots, for the free throws cost Omaha a dozen points in their last encounter.

South Dakota U. won a game from Morningside early in the season, and dropped their second game to them last week. The Coyotes also lost one game to Iowa State Teachers, and are in next to last place in the North Central loop.

Two of the Coyotes will need special attention when the Omahans meet them Thursday evening; Buck, their ace guard, and Shreves, star center.

Hartman Edits School Annual

Members of the staff of the 1936 Omaha University Yearbook were appointed Friday afternoon, December 20, by the Board of Student Publications. They include: Editor, Ellen Hartman; Associate Editors, Kathryn Johnson, Agnita Jensen, Rose Fisher, Ruth Wemmer, Lucille Hurlbut, Vincent Nelson, Loren Gammon and Lloyd Lee; Business Manager, Jerry Gross; and Circulation Manager, Lewis Leigh.

The work on the yearbook has been progressing rapidly and bids for the pictures have already been submitted.

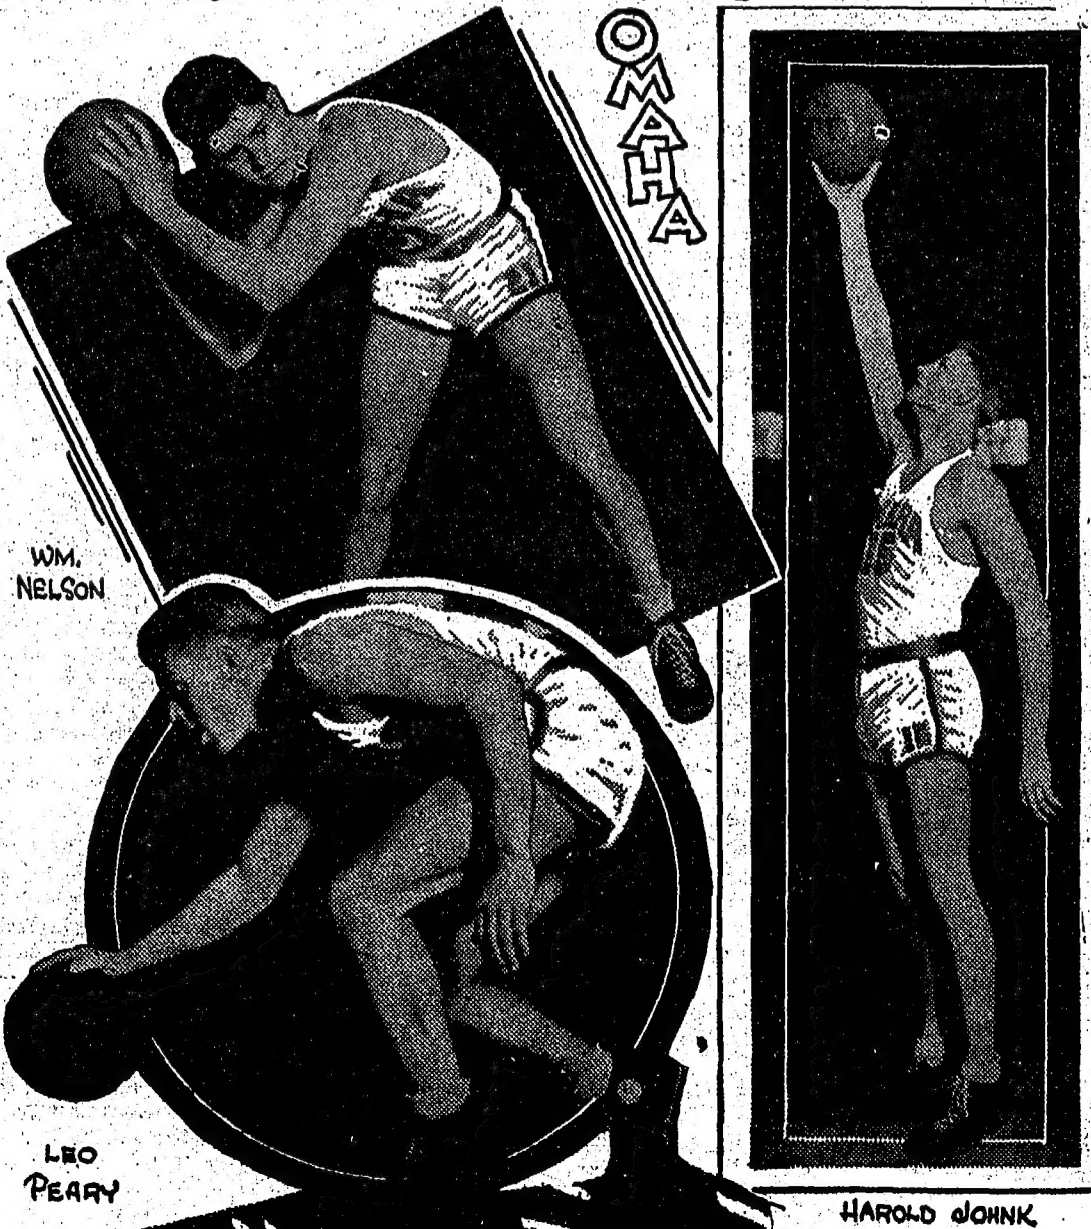

Seniors Choose Kurtz, Harris To Sponsor Class

Dr. Lyman H. Harris and Miss Gloria Kurtz were chosen sponsors of the 1936 graduating class, it was announced by John Moucha, senior president, following a meeting of the class held Friday morning.

Dr. Harris is a professor in the history department. Miss Kurtz is an instructor in the college of business administration.

A class photographer was selected at the meeting and plans relative to the senior section in the University annual were discussed.

Battle Coyotes Here Thursday Night In N. C. Game

These are three of the lads Coach Johnny Baker is relying upon to give the Omaha University cagers their first win in the North Central conference when the Cards play the University of South Dakota Thursday night. Johnk plays center, Nelson will start at forward, and Pearey will be teamed at guard with Melvin Boldenow.

BACK TO INDIFFERENCE!

Co-operation and interest among the students and Student Council has suffered a relapse. For a time last fall it appeared that the students had reached the point where they would continue steadily towards the development of a fine spirit of co-operation and a real support of the University's activities, without returning to their old state of indifference. Recent events on the campus have shattered this hope of continuous development.

Six weeks ago the president of the student council conferred with President Haynes relative to the purchasing of an amplifier to be used at University affairs, such as dances, banquets and football games. The President expressed his approval of such a purchase. The matter was then presented at a meeting of the Student Council and it was decided that a thirty dollar surplus in the Council's treasury, arising from the October Homecoming celebration, be applied on the purchase of the amplifying system, the remainder of the cost being taken care of by the school. Several machines were installed in the gym and were tried out at a series of noon dances.

At a meeting of the council last week an all-school dance was scheduled to be held in the gym Friday evening for the purpose of allowing the students to express their choice of the amplifiers. The council members were apparently enthusiastic about the plan and promised to interest their friends on the campus in the dance and to come to the dance themselves. Notices of the dance were posted in Joslyn Hall and the Science Hall. The dance was for everyone and dates were unnecessary.

Then, Friday evening came. Sixteen students and one member of the student council, the president, appeared at the dance. No decision concerning the amplifiers could be made. The Student Council is a body elected by the students to assume the leadership in student activities. When the council plans an activity, it is the duty of the members of the Council to support any action taken by their group to the best of their ability. Does such lack of interest and co-operation indicate that the students do not favor the plan or that they are indifferent? Should an amplifier be purchased? Only the students can answer these questions.

ON THE MAGAZINE RACK

By LLOYD L. LEE

Man's Farthest Aloft—The National Geographic
(Capt. Albert W. Stevens)

One of the most interesting articles to be found in the current issue of any magazine is that in the National Geographic Society concerning the U. S. Army Stratosphere Expedition found in the January issue of the National Geographic Magazine. It is thrilling. Captain Stevens writes so vividly that one can imagine one's self in the nine foot gondola 13½ miles above the earth, and the forty accompanying illustrations intensifies the interest. Every detail of the expedition is explained, but it is the flight itself which fascinates one.

Captain Stevens says that he had the fullest confidence in the ground crew and the balloon. The seventeen foot rupture in the bag during the inflation was purely an unforeseen accident and was immediately repaired, though the temperature was nearly zero. At the take-off, 750 pounds of ballast was dropped in ten seconds to avoid a near-crash caused by a strong down-current of air. At 16,000 feet the hatches were closed and manufacturing of air and pressure was begun inside the gondola.

At the top, 73,000 feet, the sunlight was blinding, and the sky was nearly black. The earth was a vast expanse of colored brown, apparently flat, stretching on and on for hundreds of miles. "Wagon roads and automobile highways were invisible, houses were invisible, and railroads could be recognized only by an occasional cut or fill. The larger farms were discernible as tiny rectangular areas. Occasional streaks of green vegetation showed the presence of streams."

Insects and microscopic organisms as well as numerous technical and complicated apparatus were used for making tests and compiling data. By means of the short wave radio Capt. Stevens talked with London, the flying China Clipper, and a number of distant stations.

It's In The Cards

By LEO PEAREY

Maybe some of you're guys wonder why 'Bosco' Gammon hasn't been around lately. Well, it seems as if the poor little fellow fell off a sled and broke a couple of trees down before the side of his face decided that perhaps Oak was stronger than flesh, or something to that effect. Of course it's all right to 'go back to nature,' but when one does this, one must also be able to distinguish between Oak and Fig trees. The moral—never slide on the side of your face, when the sled gives out!

Hey! A Straw Vote

By popular vote of the loafers who sit on the bench in the main hall, Ruthie Grenville and Ardyth Hudson, (Noly King's new flame) are the two best sports in school. They'll laugh, talk and wink (and how) with freedom, and don't seem to take higher education to mean snobbishness and the attitude of being better than some one else. The only one vote against them was Bob Flesher, who voted for Betty Lou Stringer, who seems to be the favorite of several other people who weren't around at the time.

Boy, we really thought Gerry Gardner must be ineligible because of the number of trips he was making into the registrar's office lately, but upon second investigation we found out that he's also interested in a plenty keen gal, who works in there. When Johnk finds out, there's REALLY going to be a hot Dutchman. Gee, just think of four-hundred and forty pounds of men trying to get in that little office door together. You think, my head aches.

They tell me Battleship Riggins really has will power, or indifference, what ever it is when a fellow can go see (?) his girls and talk about riding bicycles and eating peanuts. To tell the truth I don't think he does, to watch him blush every time he gets ready to go home.

Baldy Hurries

Mel Boldenow sure had to come home from North Dakota in a hurry last week, and he really meant it, too. It seems that Baldy's girl makes him keep his fingernails polished and since he was busy investigating foreign material while there, his dainty nails were becoming cracked and since he was afraid of catching cold (so he said) he was anxious to get back; anyway, that's what he said, but you can hardly believe some people, some time!....How about it 'Baldy'?

You know this Carl Baade is awfully quiet most of the time, but you ought to see the guy when he gets started. Boy, he and Brown really go to town when the situation demands fast action and I'm not talking about basketball either. Being one of those guys who believe in keeping no detail from a reader I suggest that for a delightful conversation you speak to these two young Cellinis sometime. No-foolin'!

Confession!

Say, have you ever walked from Benson to school about five o'clock on a New Year's morning? Well, take it from me you probably have missed one of the most exciting moments of your life. All the milk-men are out delivering milk, the cops are watching all the late arrivals with intense interest and in general every thing is so quiet and complacent. Yeah, verily—especially if its snowing out and the streets are muddy, and please don't forget that Bedford street is really hilly, so hilly in fact that if you slip and fall on the ice and mud, you might have a cleaning bill down at Harry Bush's.

Helmstadter Asks Students To Vote On Registration

Registrar C. W. Helmstadter has announced that he is seeking the type of registration procedure most popular with the students of the University, in order that one procedure may be adopted by the Registrar's office to be used throughout the year.

It has been the custom at the University to schedule two or three days at the beginning of the fall semester during which students must register, and to allow students to register for second semester work at their own convenience during the time of final examinations.

Mr. Helmstadter has written the following letter to the student body, explaining his plan to secure the students' choice:

To All Students:

Examinations and registration will take place during the same period, January 15 to 24. We hope students will bear in mind that when they register they incur a contractual obligation; also, that registration should be completed and fees arranged for by 5 p. m. January 24, because thereafter a late fee goes into effect. The student should be well acquainted with the rules for graduation because, while faculty advisers will do their utmost to avoid errors, the student in the last analysis will be held responsible for meeting the exact regulations.

The Registrar's office would like to receive an expression of opinion from the student body as to which type of registration they prefer:

1. The type which is carried on in the fall, which is known as a centralized system of registration.
2. The type which is carried on during examination week for second semester, which is known as a decentralized type of registration.

For the purpose of securing each student's opinion, there is a short form available in the Registrar's office which is to be filled out there. The Registrar would appreciate an expression of preference from each student. The results are to be analyzed in the Registrar's office and undoubtedly the type of registration which is of better service to the student body will be set up.

last month with the announcement by the University athletic board that the school had withdrawn from the Nebraska league and would compete only in the North Central.

An important change in the athletic set-up was the addition of Johnny Baker, former grid All-American, as football line coach and head basketball coach.

Individuals also did well in athletics. Leo Pearey and Harold Johnk were named to the official North Central all-star team, and Pearey, Johnk, Noel King, Howard Sorenson and Melvin Boldenow were placed on the Nebraska Intercollegiate honor eleven.

Better Spirit

Constantly improving student support of the teams and the growth of school spirit was convincingly demonstrated by the chartering of a special train to attend the Omaha-South Dakota game at Vermillion in November. This was the first time such a project had been attempted at Omaha University.

Further evidence of the growing enthusiasm of the student body was the Homecoming festival held in October. Despite adverse weather conditions, the parade and entire celebration were admitted to be the largest and most successful ever staged at the University. Elinor Johnson was elected by student ballot to reign as Homecoming Princess.

In The News

Other important names and events in the news were Kenneth Turner, first Barb to head Student Council, Homecoming chairman, Barb president; Ellen Hartman, first co-ed editor of Gateway in five years, to edit Municipal University's first annual; announcement of the secret marriage of grid star Morrie Loder and Mary Adams; and lest we forget, the complete absence of the anonymous publications which blossomed so abundantly here last spring.

OMAHA UNIVERSITY FIVE DEFEATED BY N. D. U. INVADERS

Cards' Third Defeat In North Central Conference

37-19 SCORE

By FRANCIS HESLER

The University of North Dakota's basketball team, seeking another North Central Conference crown, defeated the Omaha University Cardinals, 37 to 19, at the Central high school gym Saturday evening.

It was the seventh straight victory for the Nodaks, and placed them again on the top of the North Central Conference running. Omaha University has received three straight defeats so far in the conference, and is at the bottom of the standings.

The Cardinals seemed nervous from the beginning of the game, and lost the ball several times on ragged passing. Omaha was on the defense almost constantly the first nine minutes of play. Johnk broke the ice with a free throw, making the count 6 to 1.

Carl Baade slipped the first field goal through the loop, making the count 9 to 3. Clarence Bolte then entered the game, and on the first play, introduced himself with a field goal, making the score 9 to 5. It looked like the Cardinals were going to give the North Dakota lads a scare, but Birk put away two, and Aamoth followed with one. The half ended with North Dakota holding a lead of 17 to 10.

Shoot One-Handed

The second half began with the Sioux making the baskets one-handed, and with great accuracy.

The Cardinal punch was more aggressive after the intermission period, but the Nodaks dominated the scoreboard. They spent much more time under the North Dakota basket, but the Sioux managed to take possession of the ball before Omaha did much damage. The Nodaks made more baskets than the Cardinals, shooting twice as much.

Miss Free Throws

The Cardinals lost a chance of making the score closer by missing an even dozen free throws. Johnk was the chief offender, missing nine charity shots.

Melvin Boldenow, the former Bloomfield High school star, was outstanding for the Cardinals because of his consistent defensive game. He was pitted against the spark plug of the North Dakota team, Bob Finnegan, who was the highest scorer in the North Central Conference last fall, and held the Sioux chief to a single field goal.

Birk and Aamoth were the high scorers for the North Dakota delegation with four field goals each, while Johnk led the Omahans with three.

Cardinals Lose To Wayne Wildcats In Second Encounter

The Wayne Wildcats defeated the Omaha Cardinals in the return game played in Omaha Friday, December 20th, by a score of 39 to 26. A week previous, the Cardinals defeated them 26 to 22 in the opening game of the season for both schools.

Lingenfelter, Wayne forward, stole the scoring honors with seven field goals and one free throw. Gragson, Wayne guard, was largely responsible for the Wildcat victory because of his strong defensive playing.

Royce Brown's ten points led the Cardinal scoring card, and Carl Baade, who played a nice floor game but was unable to shake Gragson very often, followed with three field goals, and three free throws.

Schedule Course In Social Work Second Semester

A class in Introduction to Family Case Work will be offered at 11 o'clock Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, next semester. All students interested in doing social work some day will find this class very helpful and interesting according to Dr. Earl T. Sullenger, sociology professor. An experienced social worker will teach the class.

After a brief survey of the general field of social case work, this course will center upon family case work, stressing the family as the unit of study. It deals with the causes of disorganization and the processes of adjustment as applied to the family. Attention will also be given to the importance of the first interview, the role of the case worker, the use of the case record and technique of the plan for the family. Actual case work material will be presented to the class; and wherever possible, visits will be made to the local agencies operating within this field.

John Germ is interested in bacteriology. He's written Ohio State university for information relative to a course in that subject.—The Midland.

BISON NOSE OUT CARDS, 29 TO 27

The North Dakota State Bison barely managed to nose out the Omaha University Cardinals by a score of 29 to 27 to tie with North Dakota U. for top place in the North Central Conference basketball race at Fargo, Saturday, January 4.

North Dakota State handled the ball much better, and with much more ease than the Omaha lads, but their shots were of little value, even on their free throws. Only five baskets were made by the Bison from the charity lane, and the Cardinals completed five out of eight.

Harold Johnk, Leo Pearey, and Melvin Boldenow were outstanding for the Cards, while Carl Baade, as usual, led the Omaha scoring with a total of seven points.

N. D. University Smothered Omaha By 46-26 Score

The University of North Dakota made its first step toward attaining another North Central Conference title Friday, January 3, at Grand Forks, by smothering the Omaha University Cardinals by a decisive score of 46 to 26 in one of the most ragged games of the season.

The Cardinals played a bang-up game the first half, but when the Sioux from the far north started hitting the loop many times in succession at the beginning of the second period, the Nebraskans began to fade rapidly under the powerful machine of last year's champions.

Carl Baade and Harold Johnk copped the scoring honors for the Cardinals with four field goals apiece. Melvin Boldenow also played a wide awake, play-smashing game for Omaha. Birk of North Dakota U. turned in the best performance of the Sioux.

Test Amplifiers At School Dance

The second of a series of tests which are being made to secure a portable amplifier to be used for noon and Friday evening dances was made Friday evening in Jacob's Hall.

The first test was made during the week before Christmas vacation in an attempt to select a machine with the best tone. Prices are being considered also.

The Student Council, which is in charge of the selection of the amplifier, will apply the surplus money from Homecoming on the purchase of the machine.

Kenneth Turner, president of the student council, said that it is not likely that other tests will be made.

The Council hopes to have the amplifier in use by the first week of next semester. The final decision will be made by President Rowland Haynes.

Ma-ie Committee Petitions Due Soon

Ma-ie Day committee petitions will be due February 5, according to an announcement made Wednesday by Kenneth Turner, president of the Student Council.

The committee will consist of one student representative from each class and a chairman. Petitions for these positions should be turned in to Miss Ruth Diamond or Kenneth Turner.
